lerature is not as warm as it was a few days ago, we en' by now very magnificent weather. The Champs lysées and Boulevards are filled with numerous carriages, ind many epen barouches have made their appearance imeng the other vehicles, with many pretty and fashioa-ble women lounging on their cushions. The paletots, turs, and warm garments have been laid aside, and if the nd of March and the month of April are not as stormy s usual, we shall soon see the leaves on the trees and he rosebuds in our gardens.

In the meantime, the river Seine is still covering the needows below and above Paris, and overflowing its sanks from its source to the sea. The "water metre"? which is placed at the Pont Royal marks 5 metres 25 centimetres, and this is considered quite high for the river. This flood is attributed to the melting of the snow in he mountains where the river has its source. From all parts of the mountainous countries of Fra in the Alpa, Pyrenees, Jura, &c.—we receive the news that the snow storms have produced a great number of hisasters. Several avalanches have buried many villages and their inhabitants in the grave, and these natural accidents are not on the eve of being at an end, for he winter storms are still continuing in these parts of season in the exhibition of flowers which took place bn Friday last, in the square of the Champs Elysées, under an immense tent, in the centre of which was placed the pretty fountain which is built on the spot. The offerings of Flora, which were exhibited on the occasion, were of the most magnificent order, and all the amateurs of horticulture were highly delighted with this grand display of flowers of all kinds. Lilacs, Orchis, rodedendrums, dahlias, camelias, roses, fruits, and preserves, which were disposed in a very picturesque style to the eyes of all beholders. A distribution of pre-plums awarded to the gardeners who had exhibited the exhibition of these fragrant flowers, which were, on the mext day, either sold or taken away by their proprietors. The Emperer and Empress, not to forget all the members of the imperial family, visited the exhibition on Saturday

The horse chestnut tree of the Tulleries garden, which is called L'arbredu 20 mars, in memory of the first appearance of its leaves on the return of the Emperor Napoleon from the island of Elba, is now in full bloom—a little in advance, as it may be seen, from its former epoch of growth. Many people were vesterday afternoon aroun the tree, admiring its green leaves.

The workmen engaged by the city of Paris have already been distributed in the Bois de Boulogne, and have begun digging in all directions. A ditch, seventy-five metres large and twenty metres deep, is to be made in the forest, to introduce an artificial river, which will run across the Bois de Boulogne, and in the centre of which will be two sislands, upon which villas will be built, and which will be sonnected with the shores by elegant bridges. The expense of this river will cost 1,400,000 francs. The members of the Jockey Club have preferred a request to the Prefect of Is Seine, to have a hippodrome made for the spring races, in the central part of the wood.

The approach of the Holy Week and of the end of Lent has somewhat stopped the faskionable pleasures in the high society of Paris, and the balls and soirces have been postponed until after Easter Sunday. At the Tulleries, the only pleasure taken by the Imperial couple has consisted in a concert, which was given on Friday last, and at which only one hundred friends had been invited. Mils. Morlan and Lefebre of the Comic Opera house had been called to sing the prettiest gems of their reperiors, and they were highly successful. The Emperor and the Empress presented these fair hightingales with two splendid jewels. There was also a reception last night, but the company amounted to only 300 people. M. Fould and M. De Maupas have also given two scirces, which were more of the political than the fashionable kind. At the last softee of the Minister of Police I met the celebrated African nabob, who is now the general-inchief of the armi will be smaller.

M. Berger, the Profect of the Seine, will also give a grand ball to the Emperor Napoleon and Empress Eugenie, on the 2d of next month.

Orfils, the renowned chemist, is dead, and his death has caused much mourning at the Academy of Medicine of Paris. The obsquies of this talented professor were celebrated at the church of St. Sulpice, which, though very large, had not sufficient space to receive the admirers of the incomparable savast. A musical mass was song by the Philharmonic Society in honor of the deceased, who had always been a great amateur of music, and after the absort, the whole assembly followed the hearse to the cemetery of Pere La Chaise. Several speeches were delivered over the grave.

The propristor of the Hippodrome has obtained from the Prefect of Police the permission of exhibiting in Paris real bull fights, in the Spanish style—that is to say, with the Spadas, Towreadors, Piccadors, and other members of the profession. It is understood that no blood will be spilled, and that the bull will be killed with prussic acid, The men will also do the "job" in such a manner as to be totally protected from the "horns" of the animals. We shall see how all this will be managed in order to be amusing and not disquating shall see how all this will be managed in order to be amusing and not disgusting.

The house which was occupied in 1670 by the Marchioness of Briuvilleirs, the celebrated poison dealer, who was rowée and burnt on the Place de Grève, in 1676, was demolished a few days ago on the Boulevard Mozas, and the workmen found in the cellars three skeletons, which, after examination were considered to be those of the two brothers of the poisoner, and of her sister, who, all three, had been poisoned by her. to serve her experiments on tonics. Several jewels and other things were found in the coffins which contained these remains of a past century. The house itself had been built under the reign of King Dagobert.

The suicide of Count Camerata, which I mentioned in my last letter, was followed, a few days ago, by that of Mademoiselle Marthe, an actress of the Vaudeville theatre, who has been for some time enamored with the cousin of the Bonapartes. It appears that this gentle looking woman, who had received from the Count a large number of presents, am unting to the sum of 70,000 francs, was ordered by the police, (who searched her place and took all the letters,) to disgorge the whole of these "profits," and threatened to be sent to Cayenne in case of any resistance. The poor woman was so much frightened with these threats that she returned home, after having visited the church of the Madelaine, where the corpse had been exhibited, and accomplished her suicide with charcoal. The body was accompanied to the emetery by all the comedians and actresses of Paris. The pall beavers were Mms. Clco, Bader, Octave, and Duprés, of the Vaudeville theatre. A reporter of the Assembles Nationale, who had been lately the best friend of Mme. Marthe, was following the hearse shedding tears.

A crime has been lately committed which caused much sensation in Paris. It appears that Mme. Frent, a violin player of much talent, born and educated at Lille, who had made an engagement with some artiste to visit the United States, came here a few weeks ago to make her passage arrangements for America. The unfortunate girl, who was a beautiful creature, was given up by her agents to a libidinous individual, who abused her whist she was in a state of insensibility by chloroform. On the following morning she was taken to the hespital, under a false name, and died in the evening. The mother of this unfortunate young female, who had suspicion of her terrible fate, made inquiries of the police, and the whole was discovered a few days ago. The poople concerned in this horrible transaction have all been arrested.

A company of 125 Germans embarked, on Tuesday last, at Havre for New York. Their intention is to go to California.

We have now a convent of monks in Paris. These disciples of St. Francol: are thirty-two in number, and they have opened a church to the inhabitants of the Mont Parnasse, where their convent is situated.

The following missionaries of the Roman Catholic religion embarked at Havre for Toronto, on Saturday last—Messrs. Souterid, Malbos, Vincent and Flanirle. This last gentleman is of Irish birth.

I have great pleasure in montioning here a new book which I have received for Mr. Bennett, called Scheet Americans written and published by Mr. Charles Oliffe, an Roglish gentleman of much talent, who on the reverse of his countrymen, has written a book containing exact, just, and sound remarks on a journey of eighteen months in the United States and Mexico. I have perused this book with much attention, and I am sure it will make a great sensation in the United States. Mr. Charles Oliffe has seen and observed much, and the second edition of his valuable book, which I have, is sold with much profit in Paris and all over France.

We have had many interesting new plays at the different theatres in Paris, which are worth being made known to your American readers.

The most important and striking among them is the comedy called "I. honneur et l'argent," written by M. Pousard, the celebrated tragic author of "Lucrece" and "Charlotte Corday," which was played on Saturday last, at the Odeon. All the critics of Paris have spoken with the utmost eulogy of this comedy, which contains a series of magnificent rhymes, and the plot of which is magnificent. M. Pomard is now called "the poet" of the Nineteenth century.

At the Chestre Lyrique, Messrs. De St. Georges and

At the Theatre Lyrique, Messrs. De St. Georges and Grisar have produced a new version of Cazatte's "Le Diable Amoureux," and of the ballet of the aame name, which Mme. Augusta used to dance in New York. The plot of this opera is exactly the same as that of the ballet, and the wise en acces, costumes and properties, are magnificent. As for the music it contains, it is a series of pretty gems, which will soon become popular in Paris and elsewhere. The title of this new Opera is "Les Amours du Diable."

At the Porte St. Martin, M. Paul Veval, a writer of much talent, has produced a drama in five acts, and ten tableaux, called "Frere Tranquille," which represents the history of the son of D'Armagnon, whose father was beheaded fadder the reign of Charles VI. The facts and incidents are of a very interesting kind, and Millique, the renowmed actor, who plays the part of the Frere Tranquille, is admirable. He is assisted by the excellent actors Measrs. Ambroise, Volair, Fleury, and Mmes. Clarissa Muroy, Lisa Felix, (sister to Mme. Rachel,) and Lucie Mabire.

At the Palais Royal, Messrs. Claivotte and Deucamon have offered the public a long and amusing extravaganza, in five acts, entitled, "Folies Amoureuses." Never so many forces have been arranged in one play, and the whole offers a variegated series of scenes which are quite pleasing. Sauville, Lavasson, Granot, Hyacinthe, and Mme. Alire Duval, the best comics of the irrospe, are performing in this new comedy.

At the Vaudeville, Messrs. Duvert and Lauganne have also produced a farce in one act, called "Une Jolie Jambe," which was received with the utmost applause. That "pretty foot" will have a long walk on the stage.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL.

MONEY MARKET.

SATURDAY, April 23—6 P. M.

The stock market opened to day weak and unsettled, with slight indications of a greater decline. At the first board, Florence and Keyport fell off ¼ per cent; Cumberland, ¾; Reading Railroad, ¾; Panama Railroad, 1.

Morris Canal advanced ¾ per cent; Canton Co., 58; New Creek, 1/4; Hudson Railroad, 11/4. In others there was no change. We notice more activity in railroad bonds and city bank stocks. Eric and Hudson River Railroad bonds comprise the principal business in that class of securities. The market is by no means strong, and the upward move-ment recently realized far from a healthy one. The fact is, that out of Wall street there is no speculation; and the brokers cannot be buyers and sellers all the time, and make money. They cannot get up prices without extra-ordinary aid from outsiders, and there is at present very little probability of such aid being granted. When the brokers wish to break down the market, they can get along very well without any external influence. The fancy stocks are all held in the street. The weaker classes of brokers are filled up with all kinds of trash, and classes of brokers are filled up with all kinds of trash, and they are particularly anxious to get rid of it without loss. The coal stocks weigh heavy upon holders, and the prospect looks black enough. Thus far, very little coal stock has been distributed. It is mostly hypothecated in large blocks, on account of the original holders, and there it is likely to remain. The few outsiders who touched Cumberland and Phoenix got their fingers badly burned, and the probability is they will not touch them again.

The receipts at the office of the Assistant Treasurer of this port to day amounted to $192,776; payments, $149,204 37; balance $6,896,902 23.

The coal trade over the Chesapeake and Ohio Canal, for the week ending the 16th inst., was greater by 313 tons, than that of the last week, (which showed an increase of 642 over any previous period,) and would have been still greater but for an unavoidable accident on the Mt. Savage Railroad—47 boats having been loaded with 4,797 tons coal, 129 coke. The canal continues in fine navigable order, and boats are almost hourly arriving and departing. During the week ending the 16th, there were transported over the Mt. Savage Railroad 5,084 tons of coal, and over the road of the Cumberland Coal and Iron Company, 4,670 tons—total transportation for the week, 9,754 tons—and since the 1st of January last, 102,620 tons; of which 71,509 tons were transported over the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, and 31,110 descended the Chesapeake and Ohio Canal. This shows a slight decrease in the transportation over the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, and scompared with the previous week.

The Baltimore Sun of the 22d says—It is stated that the miners and laborers in the Cumberland (Md.) coal region have struck for higher wages, and that, in consequence, the coal business has been entirely arrested, and must so remain until the difficulty is adjusted.

Copper ore, says the Raleigh, N. C., Register, has been recently found on the lands of Messrs. Atwater, between four and five miles southwest of the University. It is the double sulphuret of iron and copper, the ore from which nearly all the copper of commerce is extracted, and the same that is raised at the Fentress mine in Guilford—quantity unknown.

The excitement in copper stocks has a good deal subsided, and prices have receded considerably. Speculators were generating steam a little too fast, and it is well they opened the safety valve in time.

The ci'izens of Milwaukee are agitating the question of a harbor loan to add to the $15,000 appropriated by the government, and put the piers at the harbor in thorough repair. A vote will be taken upon it in the course of two weeks.

A correspondent of the same paper writes as follows: "The very richest copper mine yet discovered in North Carolina, was found upon the lands of Jonathan Stalker, in the upper part of Randolph county, within one mile and a half of the plank road, and near a place called New Market. This mine was worked for gold twenty years ago, and abandoned on account of the copper ore interfering with the operations for gold Thennoone in North Carolina knew of the immense value of copper, and no notice was taken of it. The vein lies between a granite fermation, and the copper is found embedded in the quartz. from four to five feet from the surface. Huge masses of quartz are dug out from this pit, and when the sledge hammer is applied to them, they burst open and expose the copper in seams, often entirely across the white quartz. I brought some of the specimens home with me, and they are prenounced superb."
